

Joseph ~ Snakes and Ladders

Instructions

Aim - to produce a board game discriminating between the good and bad events of Joseph's life.

1. Planning Grid

2. Using the planning grid, to make a time line of Joseph's life.
 - a. Decide the order in which each event happened,
 - b. If it was a good event, eg being rescued from the pit, put it on the "happy face" side of the timeline. If it was a bad event for Joseph, put it in the "sad face" side of the timeline.

3. Representing the events using pictures.

- a. Draw pictures of the events onto squares on the game board. Keep it chronological, so as people play the game, they move through all the events of Joseph's life in order!

4. Place your ladders:

identify your "good event" pictures and draw a ladder up from the event so it takes the player further up the board.

- a. Think about which events were really good, and give them the biggest ladders.

5. Place your snakes:

identify your "bad event" pictures and draw a ladder down from the event so it takes the player further down the board. Think about which events were really bad, and give them the biggest ladders.

- a. Remember that people slide from the head of the snake down to the tail, so put the head at the square you want your snake to start from, and the tail at where you want them to end up at.

6. Finalising your gameboard:

- colour in your pictures, and your snakes and ladders
- make some counters for people to play with. These could be plasticine, laminated cut out figures etc.

7. Play the game!
